DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 1-6 are objected to because of the following informalities:

In claim 1, line 16, the phrase "a lock spread rod" should be changed to –a lock spread member—or an equivalent term to improve the quality of the claim language.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1, 5-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being by anticipated by McQuistian (US 6,648,276 B1).

Claims 1, 5-6

McQuistian discloses a linkage structured to operatively extend between a railroad switch machine and a pair of movable rails of a railroad switch, the linkage comprising a pair of first rail lugs (A, D), see attached sketch; a pair of second rail lugs (B, C); one of the first rail lugs and one of the second rail lugs being structured to be operatively connected with one of the movable rails, the other of the first rail lugs and the other of the second rail lugs being structured to be operatively connected with the other of the movable rails; an operating spread rod (E) adjustably extending between the first rail lugs; an operating lug (F) structured to be connected with an operating rod of the railroad switch machine as shown in fig. 2; an operating connecting rod (G) adjustably extending between the one of the first rail lugs and the operating lug (F); a lock spread rod (28) adjustably extending between the second rail lugs as shown in fig. 1; a lock lug (8) coupling structured to be connected with a lock rod (30) of the railroad switch machine; a lock connecting rod (34) adjustably extending between the one of the second rail lugs and the lock lug (8); a point detector lug (12) structured to be connected with a point detector rod (40)) of the railroad switch machine, a point detector connecting rod (44) adjustably extending between the one of the second rail lugs and the point detector lug; the operating spread rod, the operating connecting rod, the lock spread rod, the lock connecting rod, and the point detector connecting rod each being substantially straight and at least partially threaded. The connecting rods being each independently adjustable.

Art Unit: 3617

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 5. Claims 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mcquistian (US 6,648,276 B1) in view of Click et al (US 6,453,727 B2).

 Claims 7-10

Art Unit: 3617

McQuistian teaches all the limitations of claims 7-10 except for switching assembly comprising a first hollow tie housing the operating connecting rod and lock rod and a second hollow tie housing the lock spread rod, the lock connecting rod, and the point detector connecting rod. The general concept of providing "a first hollow tie housing an operating connecting rod and lock rod and a second hollow tie housing a lock spread rod, a lock connecting rod, and a point detector connecting rod" in a switching assembly is well known in the art as illustrated by Click et al which disclose the teaching of "a first hollow tie (88) housing an operating connecting rod (85) and lock rod and a second hollow tie housing the lock spread rod, the lock connecting rod, and the point detector connecting rod (94)" in a switching assembly, see figs. 3-4. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify McQuistian to include the use of "a first hollow tie housing an operating connecting rod and lock rod and a second hollow tie housing a lock spread rod, a lock connecting rod, and a point detector connecting rod" in his advantageous switching assembly as taught by Click et al in order to protect the linkage assembly from damage during maintenance of the track assembly.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 2-4, 11-18 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

Art Unit: 3617

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

Berggren et al. Heim are cited to show related switch assembly comprising a linkage assembly in a sleeper.

Mock, and Huber are cited to show related connecting rods for a switching assembly.
